

Amber Ludwig

President, NGNG Enterprises

Amber Ludwig is an entrepreneur working with individuals and business owners worldwide. Her skills include developing websites and project management, graphic design, working with authors to spread their message, writing from the heart and with good intention, networking and joint venturing with others, public speaking for small groups or audiences over 300 in size, training and coaching on an extensive list of techniques, and more. But her true passion is simple: helping others.

Since starting her company NGNG Enterprises (standing for No Guts No Glory) in 2007, Amber has created two websites which serve as inspiration and as a great educational resource for a large audience. InsightfulDevelopment.com is a "how to" website teaching business owners how to create an audience and gain success online. AmberEludwig.com has a focus of personal development and gaining power from within - ultimately to help teenagers with decision making and growing into the best version of themselves.

Amber also currently works as the Project Manager for a local web company called HereNextYear, which has helped business owners thrive online since 1996. Serving a few hundred clients, Amber loves working one-on-one with each client and helping them gain control of their online presence to make a difference in their industry - whether it be gardening, consulting, speaking, network marketing or selling solar parts. She also works with a California publishing company, Alive! eBooks, as the Author Liaison for hundreds of authors around the world. Working with authors such as Mark Victor Hansen, Lisa Nichols, T Harv Eker and Brendon Burchard, Amber coordinates everything from getting their writing started to helping them achieve Best-Seller status by executing Amazon Campaigns per book launch.

Before founding NGNG Enterprises, Amber was a key part of a multi-million dollar marketing company called Vector Marketing. Aside from achieving the highest sales level in the company of Senior Field Sales Manager, she moved through the management levels very quickly. From her promotion of Assistant Manager after 2 short months, Amber went on to become a lead Sales Manager for her local district office, to then becoming promoted as the Pilot Sales Manager and helping to run a division of 4 states. She trained managers to open their own office, was responsible for the success of all receptionists in the division and continued to help recruit and train hundreds of sales reps for the Denver district.

Amber contributes to her many ventures through writing as well. Her autobiographical and inspirational novel, written at age 22, is due to be published and released in 2011 titled, "Rescuing Me: A Teen's Journey From Lost to Found". Other works include eBooks titled, "Online Evolutions" and "57 Tips to a Better Blog" with several others in the works.

Amber is available for interviews and opportunities for additional joint ventures at this time. For any questions or comments, she is available by email at Amber@InsightfulDevelopment.com.
